INTRODUCTION

This course of Pakistan Studies — which is a multi-disciplinary subject — has been designed for the students of Grades IX and X, with a view to enable them not only to understand the factors leading to the creation of their homeland, but also to appreciate various aspects of its ideology, history, culture, geography, politics, economy and strategic position in regional and international affairs.

OBJECTIVES:

Broadly speaking, the Curriculum of Pakistan Studies is designed to:

1. inculcate a sense of gratitude to Almighty Allah for blessing us with an independent and sovereign state.
2. underscore the importance of national integration, cohesion and patriotism.
3. encourage traits of observation, creativity, analysis and reflection in students.
4. promote an understanding of the ideology of Pakistan, the Muslim struggle for independence and endeavours for establishing a modern welfare Islamic state.
5. acquaint the students with various phases of Pakistan's historical, political and constitutional developments.
6. inculcate awareness about the multi-cultural heritage of Pakistan so as to enable the students to better appreciate the socio-cultural diversity of Pakistani society and get used to the idea of unity in diversity in our national context.
7. enhance understanding of the physical features and human resources of Pakistan.
8. impart awareness about various aspects of socio-economic activities at national level and the role played by Pakistanis in the development of their society.
9. highlight Pakistan's strategic position in international politics, especially its relations with neighbouring and Muslim countries.
10. lay emphasis on the rights and obligations of the citizens of an independent and sovereign state.

TEACHING STRATEGIES

Teachers need to ensure that whatever students learn prepares them not only to do well in examinations, but to successfully face the challenges of a global society, and develop their social consciousness to the extent that they become the agents of social change. In order to achieve this objective teachers need to adopt innovative instructional strategies.

Avoiding the spoon-feeding style of traditional classroom teaching, the strategies should intellectually engage the students of varying degrees of interests, abilities and styles of learning, strengthen their power of reasoning and stimulate their active participation through different activities and exercises.

Lecture

Lectures must be well-planned, problem-oriented and accompanied by the use of appropriate diagrams, photos, graphics, charts, etc. These can also be displayed by an overhead or multimedia projector if possible and wherever available.

Lectures should not be one sided. In order to make a lecture interactive and keep students engaged, the teacher should from time to time ask questions. The students should also be encouraged to ask questions which may be answered by the teacher or directed to other students inviting them to answer. This strategy is highly effective as students participate equally, practice social skills, and individually demonstrate what they have learned from their partners.

Discussion

Discussion is yet another important form of group interaction which yields a number of benefits to the students. It increases their knowledge of the topic and provides them with an opportunity to explore a variety of views which in turn help them to examine their assumptions in the light of different perspectives. It also strengthens their communicative skills and familiarizes them with the art of academic discourse. In planning a discussion, the teacher should review the material and choose such a topic which builds upon the contents the students have recently covered and allows them enough room to come up with innovative ideas. It should not be merely a repetition of the facts they have learned from their books or the teacher's lecture.

All students should be given equal opportunity to participate and contribute in the discussion and by putting probing questions, such as “Why do you think so?” and “Can you elaborate further?”, etc., they should be encouraged to come up with appropriate answers. All discussions should be summarized briefly and precisely, identifying the questions for further inquiry and discussion.

Cooperative Learning

Cooperative learning is one of the most important strategies in which students work together in small groups or pairs to maximize their own and each others' learning. Improved self-esteem, increased on-task time, increased higher order thinking, better understanding of material, ability to work in collaboration with others and improved attitude towards school and teachers, are some of the more prominent benefits of cooperative learning. Besides, it creates opportunities for students to use and master social skills necessary for living productive and satisfying lives.

Inquiry/Investigation

Inquiry/investigation is a process of framing questions, gathering and analyzing information and drawing conclusions from it. There are a number of steps in conducting an inquiry, for example:

1. The teacher may choose a topic and have students frame inquiry questions(s) based on the topic, for instance, What were the factors leading to the Muslim demand for Pakistan?
2. Students formulate a hypothesis, i.e. provide possible explanation or educated guesses in answer to the question, for instance, Economic, social, political and cultural suppression of Muslims led to demand for Pakistan.
3. Students plan the inquiry. For example:

What is the best place to find information on the topic? /What is the best way to gather data?
How to allocate time?
Whom to consult?

4. Help students locate information/gather data. For example:
Read books on Pakistani history, society and culture; visit a museum; search the internet. (Depending on the availability of facilities)
5. Students record information as they find it. For example:

Students using books should note main idea and support evidence (Note down the reference for future use) or students can record the interview of a community member.

6. Help students evaluate their findings and draw conclusions. Students may look for relationships in the information gathered, analyze the information and try to find an answer to the query. Teach them to support their opinions with evidence from their data.
7. Have students communicate their findings in creative ways, written, oral and visual. For example, as a poster, article, talk show, role-play, PowerPoint presentation or presentations on charts or even the blackboard.
8. Encourage students to suggest possible action based on findings, if required by the theme. Select actions that are doable. Look at possible consequences of each action. Choose the best action. For example: Write a letter to the government to build a monument in the area to commemorate the contribution of the local population for the creation of Pakistan.
9. Make an action plan and carry out the action. For example: Write the letter.
10. Reflect on the success/challenges of the action.

To conclude, these strategies besides promoting academic achievements would enable students to explore a range of views on a topic, gather information, answer questions, improve their problem-solving and communicative skills and teach them how to work as a team. It will also increase higher order thinking and improve their attitude towards self-learning and the environment.

ASSESSMENT AND EVALUATION

Assessment is gathering quantitative and qualitative information, using a variety of tools and techniques that are easy to understand and interpret. Assessment should aim at evaluating teaching and learning, showing proficiency in a wide variety of tasks at class level and at providing information to different people on how well standards are being met.

Assessment and its various patterns should be in accordance with the needs of the curriculum and designed in such a manner that they inculcate and improve in students various skills such as observation, curiosity, creativity and application.

Some of the assessment types are as under:

- The selected response, where students select the answer to a question from two or more given choices. This category includes multiple choice, true/false, fill in the blanks and matching items type questions.
- A constructed response format requires students to create their own answer to a question or task. This allows teachers to gain insight into students' thinking and creative process, and to assess higher order thinking. This category includes short and essay type questions.
- Teachers' observations are commonly ignored as a form of assessment. However, teachers should constantly observe and listen to students as they work. Nonverbal communication, such as inattention, looks of frustration and other cues, give greater insight than verbal feedback. Observation is also important in assessing performance tasks, classroom climate and teacher effectiveness.
- Self-assessment refers to students evaluating themselves. In self-evaluation of academic achievement, students rate their own performance in relation to established standards and criteria. Students may also be asked to answer questions that reveal their attitudes and beliefs about themselves or other students as part of their self-reporting.

The techniques of testing and evaluation adopted for continuous assessment of students at classroom level should be both valid and reliable and proper care should be taken to prepare the objective type questions so that they can appropriately assess students' knowledge comprehension application, analysis and synthesis skills. There should also be periodic/monthly tests containing both objective and subjective type questions. Class and home assignments should also be given due weightage while assessing students' performance.

GUIDELINES FOR DEVELOPING TEACHING LEARNING RESOURCES

There are a number of teaching and learning materials required for effective teaching of particular subjects. For example:

- Textbooks
- Teachers' guides
- Students workbooks
- Visual aids such as charts, models etc.
- Computers
 - Computer software
 - Internet (Websites, online libraries)
- Community
 - Field trip
 - Guest speaker
- The environment

For History and Pakistan Studies in particular the following resources/teaching aids can be utilized to effectively support the process of teaching and learning in the classrooms:

- Primary and secondary source material
- Maps/globe (different kinds)
- case studies
- encyclopaedias
- documentaries
- newspapers/newsmagazines
- internet
- museums

TEXTBOOK

A textbook is an important teaching and learning resource. It is one of the most extensively used resources and serves as a framework for teaching throughout the year.

Basic features of a textbook

- The textbook should conform in all its details to the parameters laid down in the Curriculum.
- It must have accurate, factual and up-to-date material.
- The material must be sufficient to give students the knowledge they need to understand concepts, develop skills and engage in higher order thinking.

- The material should help students understand the world in which they live, prepare for exams, prepare for life, raise their standard and promote independent thinking.
- The language of the narrative should be simple, clear and logical and should not be loaded with unnecessary details and repetitions.
- The material must be error-free so that it can be trusted.
- The material must be unbiased and non-controversial.
- Textbooks should be well illustrated.
- A number of activities should be recommended in the textbooks.
- A variety of activities should be included throughout the book.
- End-of-the-chapter exercises must encourage students to think, develop skills, and use information for a variety of purposes.
- Textbooks must have an Index.
- Must include a Glossary.
- Must be contextually relevant.

TEACHERS' GUIDE

Teachers' guides provide detailed explanation of key concepts of the curriculum, lay down guidelines on how to teach a particular topic, and provide further examples to facilitate learning. A teacher's guide serves to educate teachers and thus can be seen as a means of helping teachers develop professionally.

Basic features of a teachers' guide:

- A teachers' guide helps teachers teach text and extend activities.
 - It does this by keeping contextual realities in view.
 - It recommends various teaching strategies and contains:
 - rationale for suggested teaching
 - various assessment strategies
 - teaching learning resources
 - additional information sources
 - extended activities and how to conduct them
 - materials that teachers can photocopy, use themselves or for students
- } up-to-date, relevant

A teachers' guide should include introduction to the guide explaining how to use it. It must be easy to understand and use, expand and develop teachers' repertoire of knowledge and skills.

WORKBOOK

Workbooks are books that contain writing activities and exercises that are related to each chapter in the textbook. Workbook exercises help to develop students' understanding of the concepts dealt with in the text, to develop skills and to apply knowledge to new situations.

Basic features of a workbook:

- Workbooks contain many exercises and activities for each chapter, topic, sub-topic.
- These exercises and activities effectively help develop, practise and assess students' content knowledge, skills and higher order thinking and are different from exercises, activities in text and guide.
- Workbooks correspond to text – exercises and activities for same topic/chapter grouped together; presuppose knowledge and skills developed in text only.
- They are non-repetitive in style, structure with a purpose to engage students.
- They are easy for students to understand and follow, clear instructions.
- They carry several illustrations/examples/explanations to reinforce concepts of the textbook
